SIR GEORGE WILLIAMS COLLEGE
FACULTY OF
ARTS, SCIENCE & COMMERCE
GRADUATING CLASS
1936-37

1937-1962

The same spirit, philosophy and drive that led to the formation of the faculties of Arts, Science and Commerce in 1934 has now precipitated the planning of a multi-million dollar institution. It is to this spirit, and to those who sustained it through the years, we dedicate this anniversary issue.

And as for the Rest of Us . . .
Class of '36 . . .

Perhaps you've forgotten that Science grads Frank Davison and Leo Germain share the distinction of being Sir George's first degree students. Gowned in '36, they joined the Ass'n of Alumni in '37 and are still enthusiastic Georgians. Leo is on the Research Staff of Shawinigan Laboratories Limited in Shawinigan Falls. A keen outdoor sportsman, he claims his single blessedness may be accredited to the fact that he is a "coureur des bois" from early spring to late fall. Frank is spending long hours at the Aircraft-Division of Canadian Car & Foundry Co., as inspector in charge of processes, has married, and has two children.

Class of '37 . . .

And of those other "Guinea Pigs" . . .

Rita Shane is now Doctor Rita Shane (McGill '42), specializing in paediatrics. Douglass Burns Clarke, Ass't Prof. in the Humanities Division of Sir George and Director of the Playmaker's Workshop, is working towards a Master's degree in Psychology at McGill . . . round about 1960 we can look for some real Georgian spirit from daughter Barbara, born April 7, '42. The years have brought responsibilities to Clinton H. Davis, who's Plant Engineer, Bell Telephone Co., Jr. Member, Engineering Institute of Canada, Chairman, Mt. Chap. Corp. of Technicians, and Ass't Editor, Mtl. Christian Endeavour! Married in '41 he will help another future Georgian celebrate his first birthday on Dec. 11, '43.

Norman Manson, Jr., was married last Oct. 3 to Josephine Alice Cahill, and is on the instructional staffs of both the Business School and the College. College corridors aren't forgotten by Lyla Richardson, listed above, who's doing psychological work with the American Army overseas (England) and who keeps tab on things through the Georgian. Alan Finlayson, employed in the Engineering Dept. of the Canadian Marconi Co., is teaching chemistry in the Natural Sciences Division of the College, and as Guinea Pig representative is a very active alumnus. Hal Betts is in Moncton as General Sec'y of the "Y", while as far as we know J. R. Kelly is still in Michigan with the Methodist Children's Home Society.

- Francis Davison -- business in the Eastern townships.
- Leo Germain has a business in Shawinigan.
- A. R. Finlayson is now Personnel Manager for the Canadian Marconi Company.
- J. H. Robinson is now an accountant with a practise in Montreal.
- D. B. Clarke is Vice-Principal and Registrar of Sir George Williams University.
- Dr. Rita Shane is now a pediatrician in Westmount.
- N. C. Manson is presently vice-Principal of the Sir George Williams Business School.
- C. H. Davis is now an engineer with the Bell Telephone Company and this year is again attending classes at Sir George.
- Up until his recent death J. B. Kidd was Executive Director of the Canadian Citizenship Council in Ottawa.
- Unfortunately we have no contact with H. E. Bettes.
- L. B. Richardson — Y.M.C.A. work in Scarborough.

In 1937, two ambitious young students by the names of Douglass Clarke and John Kidd, formed the Alumnae Association with students of the 'Guinea Pig Class' as its members. D. B. Clarke is now known as Registrar and Vice-Principle of Sir George while John Kidd, until his recent death, was Executive Secretary of

NEW CHAPTER WRITTEN IN COLLEGE HISTORY

Two Students First To Receive B.Sc. Degrees —
Rev. T. W. Jones Spoke

The Board Room was the scene of the Faculty and Student gathering on December 17th, 1936, at which the degrees and diplomas were presented by Principal Norris.

Francis R. P. Davison and Leo Germain received their B.Sc. Degrees. Diplomas of Associates in Arts were presented to the following: Francis L. P. Anderson, Harold J. Betts, Florence Blacher, Simone Bourcheix, James Carnie, Douglas Burns Clarke, James R. Kidd, Reginald Lewis, William Lynes, Sam Peletz, Herbert Quinn, Linwood B. Richardson.

In Science: Buell W. Flaherty; Arthur C. Glashan, In Commerce: Bernard Besner, Thomas R. Haugland, Robert Kirkpatrick, G. Lawson Reid, William W. Swinden Jr., and Paul Wiallard.

The Rev. T. W. Jones of Calvary United Church, Westmount, addressed the gathering and impressed on them that just because they were leaving their "Alma Mater" that was no reason why they should stop learning. He continued to say that they had only started to learn and that after one left school or college he or she should strive for bigger and better things or, as he put it, "for new lands to conquer."

The meeting was closed by Dr. Paul Villard who pronounced the benediction.

Before the meeting an informal dinner was held in the Willingdon Room which all the Graduates attended. Mr. Gerald Binks was in chair.

A Few Words From The Principal

I cannot help feeling some what envious of a group of young people setting out to build for themselves and their fellow-students, a college newspaper. I should really like to be one of them to-night as they put their second monthly issue "to bed"—to feel the paste between my fingers and the blue pencil behind my ear as I volubly bemoan the atrocious English used by the freshmen reporters.

Instead I must remain in the comparative dignity of my office and compose a message to the student which will not concern itself with the struggles of a youthful editorial board, no single member of which has, as yet, had any journalistic experience to speak of.

I suppose, at this stirring stage in the development of the College, a Principal's message might be expected to become prophetic and to dwell at length upon the phenomenon of an expanding institution. I might perhaps, be tempted to adopt that very course, but for two facts—the first, a realization that our institution is already in the sixty-fourth year of its history and that the present has grown naturally out of the past as new community needs have made possible a larger social usefulness; the second, a full acceptance of the philosophy of education which has actuated the progress of the College, at least during the past fifteen years, the belief that the criteria for evaluating the educational process are to be found in the individual student and in what happens to him rather than in the more material factors of increasing enrolment, enlarging equipment and improving of.

I. W. BEATON TO

TWENTY YEARS AGO A FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY

by Fred Kerner

THE AUTHOR: Fred Kerner (B.A. '42) served on the Editorial Advisory Board of the First Annual. He was editor-in-chief of The Georgian and director of Georgiantics that year. Recipient of the Faculty Award among other honors at SGW, he became a newspaperman and now is executive editor of Fawcett World Library, second largest publisher of paperback books in the English-speaking world. He is author of a half-dozen books and a contributor to many magazines as well as to an encyclopedia.

I'm a bibliophile.

Sitting on my bookshelves are a number of "first editions," and resting proudly among them is a slim red volume that's a rarity in this classification. It bears the title Sir George Williams College Annual, and it's dated 1942.

In a young educational institution, firsts are not at all uncommon. Over the years, as I read issues of The Georgian, I see story after story about something or other being done "for the first time" at Sir George.¹ A young university, with little means to — or even interest in — perpetuating the past, quickly forgets firsts.²

The 1942 Annual is a genuine first.³ There was no earlier edition of the Annual.⁴

The editorial board of the first Annual paid tribute to the graduates of '37, '38, '39, '40 and '41 by carrying class pictures.⁵ And a page and a half of news was devoted to those who preceded us in mortar-board and gown.

Taking the volume down from its honored place the other day,⁶ I reminiscingly thumbed through it. Looking back twenty years brought memories.⁷

My pride swelled⁸ almost as much as it did the day I first saw the "new" building, for we were The Cornerstone Class — the class that created the fund for the building.⁹

Hirschel H. Darwin, editor of the Annual, expressed the hope in an editorial that "present undergraduates may yet see the erection of a new edifice¹⁰ which it is hoped will rise as a tribute everlasting to our boys in the fighting forces."

Yes, in 1942 we were smack in the middle of The War.¹¹ On graduation night most of the males wore their uniforms under their robes. We had come back from camp at Farnham to get our degrees — though two of our number, D'Arcy McGovern and Daniel Steinberg, were already in service overseas and received degrees in absentia.

A good portion of the Annual was devoted to military activities — grads and undergrads on active service and that wonderful COTC unit.¹² One name on the service roster was honored posthumously — and it was to this man the first Annual was dedicated. He was Frederick Owen Stredder who died on active service June 10, 1941, while a paymaster commander in the RCNVR. To Georgians of yore he was both Dean and principal, and it was under his direction that the Faculty of Arts, Science and Commerce was developed.

The Class of '42 was 47 strong.¹³ Six pages were devoted to photographs of the class.¹⁴ These were accompanied by the traditional list of activities each participated in and "future plans."¹⁵

With pride, the Annual pointed to the library of 7,500 volumes;¹⁶ The Georgian, then five years old;¹⁷ and our pride and joy: Georgiantics.¹⁸

Pretty, red-haired Lucille Stern¹⁹ wrote with pen in cheek about the past successes of Sir George's musical revue. Lucille's knowledge was first hand — she danced and acted in several of the shows.²⁰

Sir George Faculty members, M.D.'s, and one even still takes courses at Sir George.

For you "first" collectors who may recall more recent musical revues,²¹ let me — simply²² that Georgiantics '42 was a show of professional proportions. It opened out of town,²³ ran three nights as part of the unofficial commemoration of Montreal's Tercentenary,²⁴ and then "played the road" to entertain troops stationed around the city.

Attesting to its first-class showmanship, let me quote reviews from the Montreal papers the day after opening night. The Star's reviewer said it was "a gay affair, full of youthful exuberance,²⁵ lavishly dressed, well spiced with comedy and having some pleasant tunes." He added that the evening was "most enjoyable" and "one which reflects great credit on the students."

The late lamented Herald said: "The producer and director²⁶ have done noble work and are slated for a goodly amount of success." Every portion of the show described by this reviewer²⁷ was "excellent," "remarkable," "talented," etc.

And the Gazette, looking to the future 'on the road,' said: "Georgiantics '42 should enliven any number of military camps with the youthfulness of its talent and the gaiety of its spirit."²⁸

Bidding "au revoir" to Sir George, wrote editor Hirsch Darwin, was like taking leave of "Home." His fond hope was that we would prove worthy of the college.²⁹ He wished success to subsequent volumes of the Annual.

The appearance of Garnet '62 — twenty years later — is indisputable indication that his wish has been fulfilled.

Save this volume.

It may become a first in its own way.

Herbert F. Quinn (now a respected member of the faculty) is pictured actually on skis. HFQ was The Georgian's ski editor. He scouted the resorts (measuring the snow by the foam in his beer glass) and rarely ventured from the pub. Once, however, he "volunteered" to participate in the cross-country race during a Winter Carnival. Rumor has it he headed straight from the starting line to the bar — "to measure a new snowfall."

THE OLD SCHOOL TIE IN LONDON . . .

The late Don Quinn (killed in action) sent a contribution from London to the first annual indicating strong school spirit even overseas. He pictured himself and Gerald Mahoney holding plans for the 1945 musical revue (he was its "first" producer). Quinn was quite prophetic in guessing the end of the war.

Through the years

- Oct. 4/37 — Classes open with college enlarged — new library with 2500 volumes and accomodation for 80 persons.
- Nov. 15/37 — "Guinea Pigs Elect Squeakers". The Guinea Pig college grad. class of 1937 have elected as Most High and Exhalted Pip Squeak, Rita Shane, and as Very Humble Base Squeak, Norman, Manson.
- Oct. 13/39 — College Orchestra commences rehearsal.
- Nov. 14/39 — Plan College Radio Guild for new year. First such undertaking of any Canadian college or university.
- Oct. 1/40 — 146 courses on the curriculum. Students get a new common room — room 2-B.
- Oct. 13/42 — "75 Georgians go west; race frost for crops." '36 hours after hearing Ottawa's frantic call for student help for the western farmer, 75 undergraduates moved cheering out of Bonaventure station.' This was 50% of the male student body and part of 1,000 students from this province who went out west to aid farmers.
- Dec. 5/45 — SUS & EFSS dissolve the War Council — remaining money being turned over to the Red Cross.
- Dec. 13/45 — . . . intellectuals Bishop, grad class prexy, and Bob Fraser playing oughts and crosses on the blackboard at the grad meeting on Sat.
- Oct. 30/46 — College acquires new annex — to contain lecture rooms and offices. (one of numerous annexes acquired in the '40's to take the overflow from the "Y"building — ed.)
- 1948-49 — College enrollment increases — Day — 717 students and evening — 1,612 students.
- 1953-54 — Basketball squad boasts Jack Silver 8' 1/4" centre.
- 1953-54 — Don Ayre elected fourth year rep. to SUS by acclamation.
- 1956 — Classes move to the new building constructed on the sight of Registrar Clarke's birthplace.
- 1961 — New Drummond street annex opened. Expansion programme announced.

The end of an era

For thirty-six years, the name Henry Foss Hall has been synonymous with Sir George Williams in Canadian education. Over three and a half decades have recorded his influence on our society. The announcement of his retirement as Principal and Vice-Chancellor of our university has been met with the deepest regret.

Dr. Hall has been in the vanguard of YMCA education projects since his appointment as student counsellor of Sir George Williams College in 1926 — the first such counselling department of any college in Canada. He was appointed Dean of the College in 1935 and succeeded Dr. Norris as Principal in 1956.

The first YMCA Fellowship student, Dr. Hall is today recognized as one of the senior YMCA officers in North America. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Council of YMCA's in Canada and Chairman of the Certification Committee of the Association of Secretaries of the YMCA. Dr. Hall has also been President of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada and has served on the governing boards of several social agencies. He was granted the degree of Doctor of Laws by McMaster University in 1956 and the degree of Doctor of Divinity by the Montreal Diocesan Theological College in 1960.

It is in his close relationship with the students that he will be most fondly remembered. His office has always been open to any student; his "Brylcreem" jokes always appreciated. A little of every Georgian goes with him as he leaves — he will be missed.

To a man, who far surpasses our inadequate thanks, this book is humbly dedicated.

From the Chancellor

It is a privilege to respond to the invitation of the Editor to address a message to Georgians through the Garnet. This year we celebrate the 25th anniversary of the first class to graduate from Sir George Williams. Those of us who have had the privilege of watching this total development have done so with pride. We are proud not only of the development of the University itself but also in the development and achievements of its students and graduates.

Those who now graduate, or who will do so soon, are naturally more interested in the next quarter century than they are in the past. However, it is still true that the past, to some degree at least, determines the future.

All the evidence indicates that the next few years will be filled with challenge and, we hope, opportunity. I would remind you, however, that opportunity exists not only in the field of your own advancement but also in that of service. At no time has it been more important that educated and able individuals give their time, their talents and their effort to the maintenance and advancement of our fundamental institutions. May I, therefore, make the suggestion that you find a way to serve not only the interests and institutions by whom you are employed but also those which seek to maintain and improve our common life. In this I hope you will not forget your alma mater. My best wishes to each one of you.

From the principal...

Thomas De Quincey, the English writer, says that we never do that which we are accustomed to doing consciously for the last time without a feeling of sadness. This thought strikes me as I realize that I like many of the recipients of this message will in a sense be graduating in 1962. However, our mutual feeling of sadness should be more than overcome by the warm glow of friendliness and of pride in our experience at Sir George Williams.

The Editor of the Garnet has kindly invited me to direct a message to its readers. My message is twofold. First, to the undergraduates and new graduates it is important to remember that life is largely what we make it and that opportunities for service and for growth are unlimited.

My second message is to the same people who perhaps many years later may turn these pages with nostalgic attitudes, remembering the good old days and desiring to recapture some of their hope and enthusiasm. To you, too, I would say that, while the past may have been good, it is still only a prologue to what may yet be done. Seek to serve and not to secure; seek to give and not to get and life will yet be filled with stimulating adventure.

To each of you at whatever stage I send sincere best wishes. May health, happiness and opportunity for service be your lot!

Ave atque vale!

There may be some significance to the fact that most S.U.S. meetings this year were held in the evenings. Anyway, President Danny Coates led the team through a big year. Probably the most important single advance was the reorganization of student offices with a switchboard arrangement for telephones. This necessitated the hiring of a receptionist who performed the bulk of clerical duties for the exec. and anyone else who could intimidate her, as well as answering that telephone.

The organization of a clubs commission to coordinate club activities giving the S.U.S. more administrative control, was another streamlining implementation. The exec. was also quite fortunate in being allowed to take part in planning for student areas in the new building.

Despite the fact that they didn't pass a new constitution, as most of their predecessors did, this year was a big one — like we said.

Publicity Committee

Chairman: Bob Wolfe

A university like Sir George Williams being too big and beautiful for the masses to comprehend, the publicity committee sees to the propagation, internal and external, of the necessary lies. It alone is responsible for the concrete campus' "public image", and for the education of the inmates in what is going on around them (or at least the publicizable part). Through the committee's tireless efforts, the face of Sir George meets the world, via radio, television, newspapers; and if you contend that the world has perhaps not been prepared for the encounter, the publicists see to this also.

Clubs Commission

Commissioner: Nick Bryson

In an organized attempt to organize organizations, the Clubs Commission tucks each brightly-plumed campus society under its protective wing, taking full responsibility for their welfare and exploits. It helps arrange trips, okays new organizations, and generally acts as a liason (or a referee) between the clubs and the S.U.S.

Commissioner Bryson (right), Secretary Joy Cowan looks on.

Evening Students Association

Every night this past year, when the clock struck the witching hour, Peter McCann and his boys came out to play. After banishing any lingering day students, the assembled company would proceed to important business such as the protection of evening societies, and the plotting of evening social events. The founder and head office of the International Association of Evening Student Councils, the E.S.A. held many executive rendezvous over ham and eggs Saturday mornings at the 'Y'.

Garnet Key

The highest honour that can be bestowed upon a student of Sir George Williams University is membership in the Garnet Key Society.

The Society's purpose is to act as a service organization for the university. Society members usher at important functions such as convocations, concerts, meetings and student assemblies: conduct guided tours, welcome visiting dignitaries and athletic teams and aid the university in any other manner possible.

Representatives of the faculty and leading students annually select the Key members on the basis of character, contribution to the extra-curricular life of the university and academic standing.

At the close of this year it was voted to extend the membership to include Evening students.

Day Division Women's Association

President: Judy Judges

The girls in the Day Division held a wide range of events this past year. Social events included several luncheons, and dances as well as a Baccalaureate Tea. Educational functions ranged from a lecture on flower arrangement to a careers program. Aside from the social events, designed for the meeting of eligible males, and the educational events, designed to teach methods of spending idle time, the girls managed to bring their parents to Sir George to make clear, what, if anything, their daughters are doing here.

President Shirley Akazawa

Evening women (female students of the university) need a union too, mainly to protect them from evening men (male students of the evening university) and the E.W.A. fills this space. Aside from performing services for its members the E.W.A. this year, as every year, held a Christmas party for children of evening students having first, with the multiplied wiles of a flock of women, inveigled Tom Galley into starring in the role of Santa Claus.

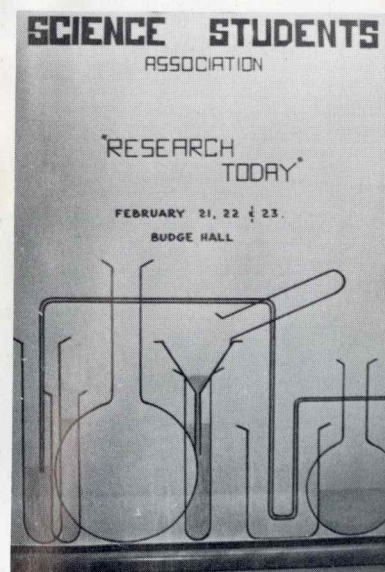

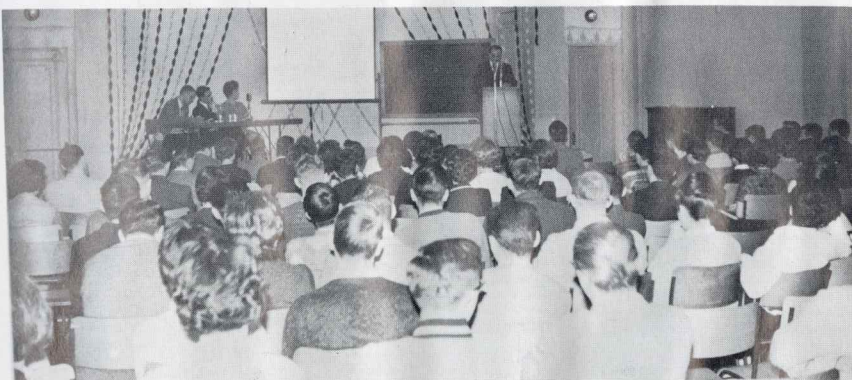

Arts Faculty Association

President: Howie Nathan

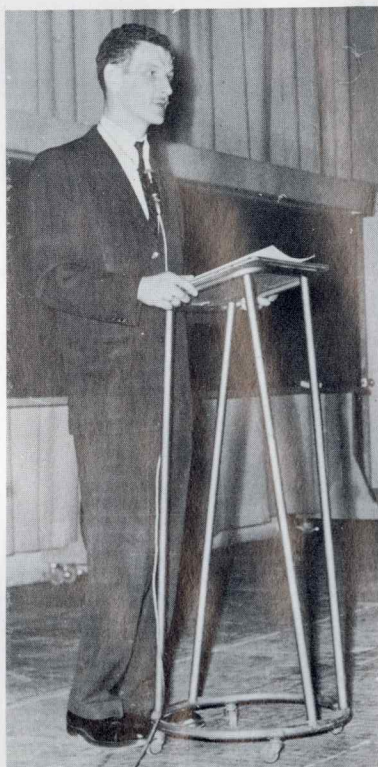

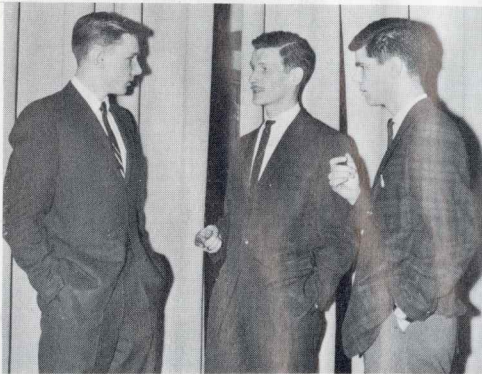

Science Faculty

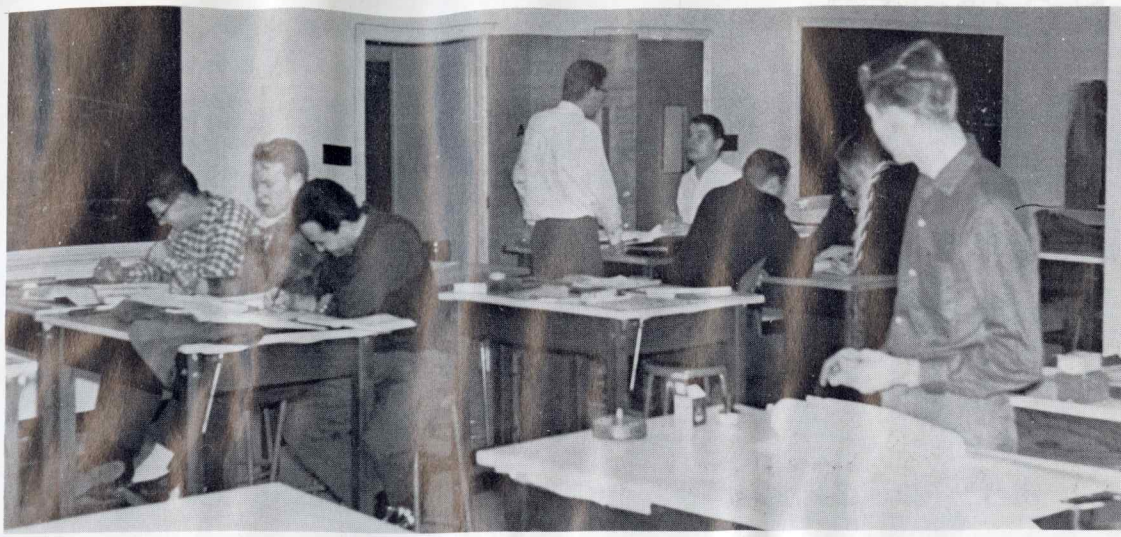

Beginning February 21st, the Science faculty's three day seminar drew countless students to hear lectures on various scientific fields. "Sterol Hormones through Pharmaceutical Research", was the subject of a lecture by Dr. Gaudry of Ayerst, McKenna & Harrison Ltd. Our own Dr. Madras lectured on the responsibilities of the scientist today. Many other interesting lectures were presented by the Science Students' Assoc. as part of their programme to keep the students informed.

Commerce Faculty

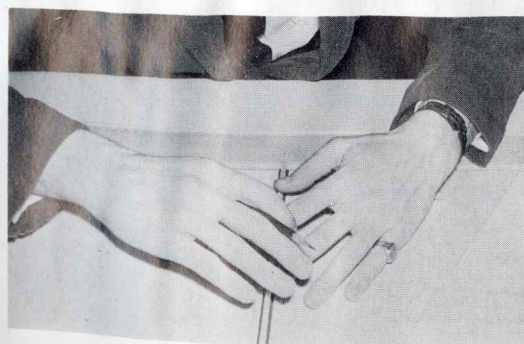

President: Ron Mold

Commerce week this year filled five days with events slanted towards the commercial, which only proves that the commerce faculty is honest in its claims. A stock exchange executive visited Sir George with a film and a lecture; a raft debate was held between Accountancy, Marketing, and Administration; an I.B.M. representative provided more celluloid and conversation; Birks Hall saw a sports panel discussion featuring such sports notables as Perry Moss; and as a climax to the whole binge on business, the students of this university descended on Molson's Brewery, for who knows what reasons?

Burnside street building is to be constructed on this sight between Mackay and Bishop streets.

Georgians

Committee Chairman Dean Rae.

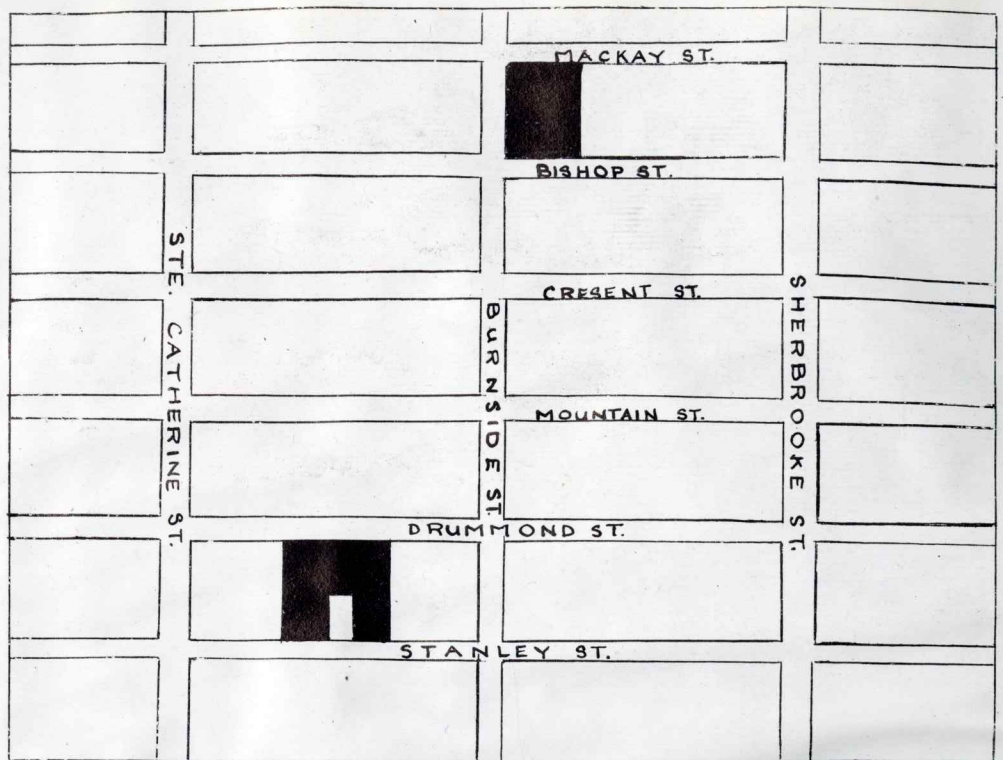

With construction scheduled to start in the spring of '63, Sir George's new 10-12 story building will be ready for class by the Fall of 1965. Bounded by Bishop and MacKay streets, the new structure, to be built on a 50,000 sq. ft. land area, will face Burnside street close by the proposed subway's Guy street terminal.

The ultimate size of the building has not yet been determined. However, we are assured that it will not be another box-like office building. It may raise to a height approaching twenty stories, but will more probably be spread out over the available area in a 10-12 story design.

Anticipating an enrollment of 5,000 day students with a comparable increase in the evening division, the new classrooms and labs will be operating at maximum capacity shortly after opening. This then is a "five year plan". It is difficult to say what the needs will be shortly after 1965. With the possibility of day summer courses to relieve some pressures, again, the requirements are unknown.

Planning for this phase of development began early this year. Sub-committees are working on student services, library and cafeteria, the academic plant, and all other departments of the university.

In the academic area, plans call for space to accommodate honours and graduate work as well as the pass courses. Aside from the regular classrooms planned, a number of twenty-seat seminar rooms will be constructed. Laboratories, including Geography, Music, and Psychology labs, have been designed to facilitate study in these subjects up to the post graduate level. Auditorium space has been sharply increased with the possibility of seven auditoria. These range from the 200-seat size through 350-seat, to one hall seating 650 persons. Drama buffs will be pleased to learn that one of the medium sized halls will be outfitted with a complete stage and fixed seats.

With a nod to the age of electronics, a computer centre is included in the plans. This will be used to speed up yearly registration, among other things, and will be available to engineering and science undergrads.

With the increasing enrollment in the larger introductory courses, a Freshman library will be included in the Burnside street building containing reserve books for these courses. Study halls will also be set up there to cut down traffic between the main library and the new building. A Natural Science and Engineering library will be grouped with the labs in the new structure as well, to centralize the facilities for these studies.

What then is to happen to the present library? With but slight projection, it is seen that the main library will eventually require a complete building. In the meantime, the stacks will stay on Drummond street. With many labs and departments moving to Burnside street, there will be space available for expansion downward. Within ten years it will contain 200,000 volumes. After that, who knows?

Along with the plans for academic and student areas, committees are working out the requirements of the various administrative functionaries. In all probability the bulk of the administration will be moved to that building. Rumour has it that they are considering the possibility of purchasing motor scooters to run back and forth between buildings — how about a sideways elevator?

Student areas enlarged—improved

New lounges, cafeteria and work

areas to highlight plans

Prexys McCann and Coates look over plans with Dean Flynn.

Planning for the student areas in the new building has been split into three divisions; activity centre, program centre, and student lounges. These areas will cover 26,000 sq. ft. or the equivalent of about two-thirds of one floor, although they will be spread about on at least two floors. The committee chaired by Dean Flynn is also working out extensive plans for medical services, cafeteria, and related needs.

The Student Activity Centre is designed to accommodate both day and evening student governments, as well as to provide adequate working area for student publications and the planning of the various events of the year. Student government officers are somewhat removed from the general area to restrict traffic into executive suites as well as to insure minimum security measures. The remaining area is sectioned off into club rooms and program offices. A significant addition in the form of Navy-type lockers, one for each club, has been included in the three larger rooms. Ninety such lockers contain typewriter shelves, drawers, and a safe. These are arranged around the perimeter of the rooms with a section down the middle as well.

In anticipation of twice weekly publications, "the Georgian" offices have been greatly expanded.

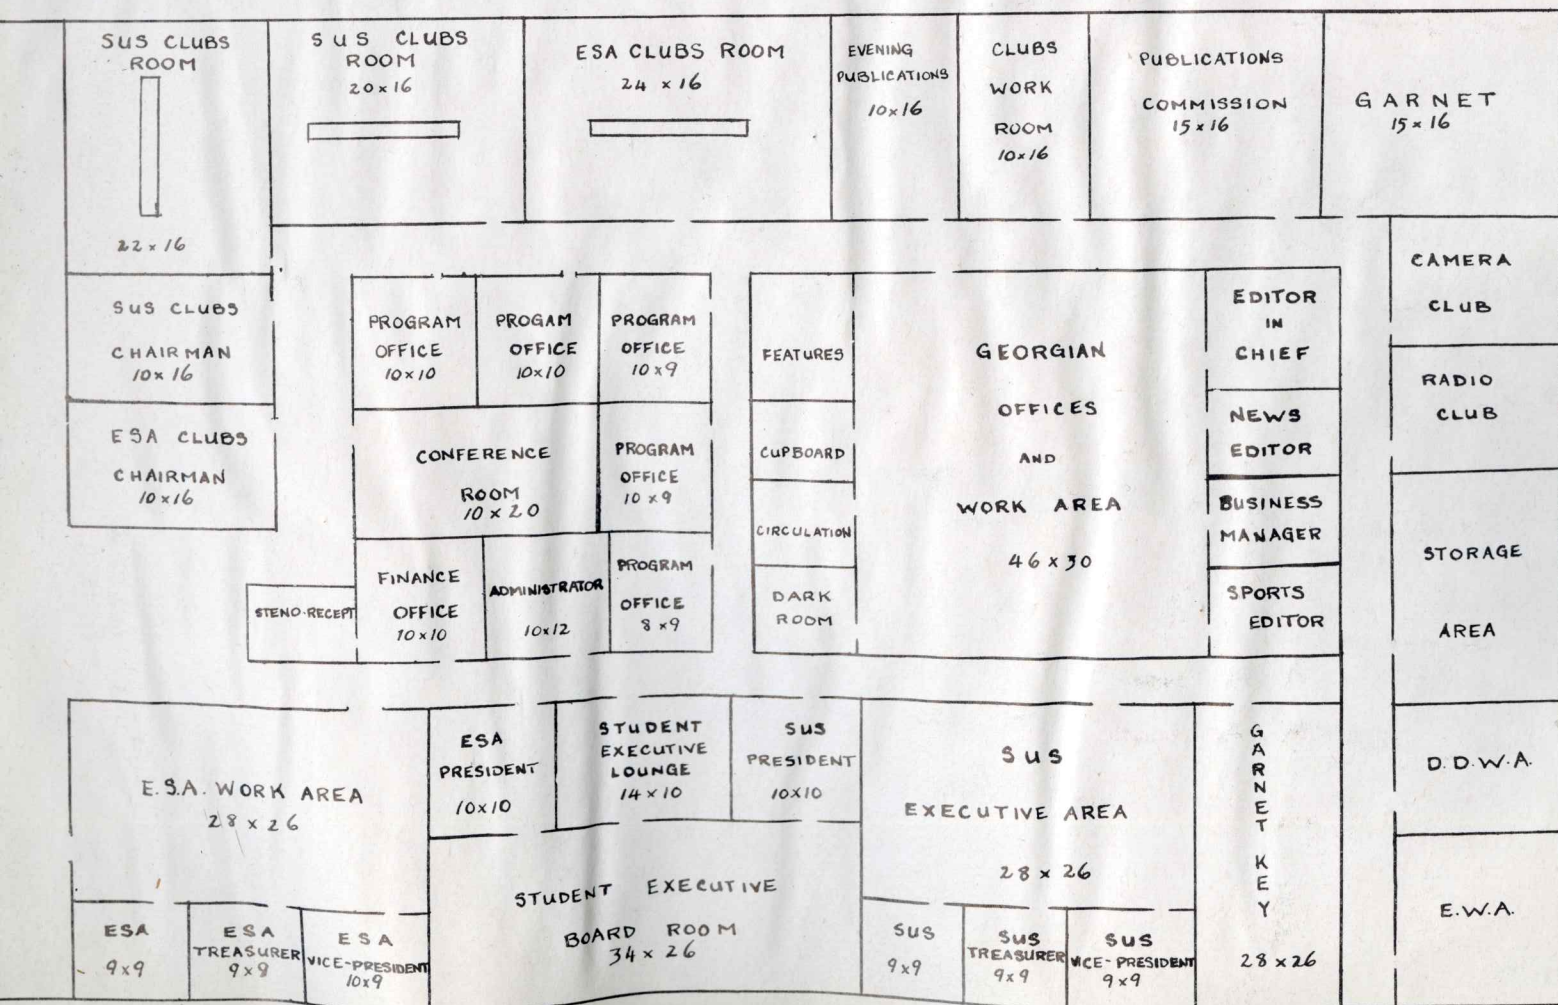

In an effort to reduce the present distractions around the student work areas, plans call for the removal of these from the basement floor.

The Student Program Centre occupies the next area and is in turn divided into three parts; meeting rooms, special program rooms, and an auditorium or all purpose room. Five regular meeting rooms are planned and are of a square design to facilitate contact and discussion. Each is to have individual character through quality interior design and the naming of rooms rather than numbering. The largest room will accomodate 110 persons while the smaller rooms seat 50 and 25.

room to include chess, checkers, cards and Table Tennis. A Music room will be specially designed for proper hi-fi and stereophonic listening and will be supplied with an extensive record collection, if all the recommendations are taken. Other rooms consist of a Drama room to be used primarily for rehearsals but designed to accomodate speech training and debating practices as well. A radio and T.V. workshop, and a fully equipped photography dark room round out the special program rooms.

The special program rooms invite our interest and are the most exciting changes in the student area. Provisions will be made for a Games

Afro-Asian Studies

President: David Bernstein

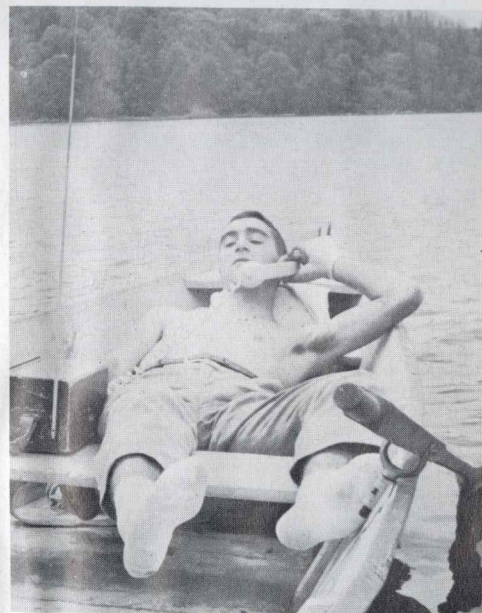

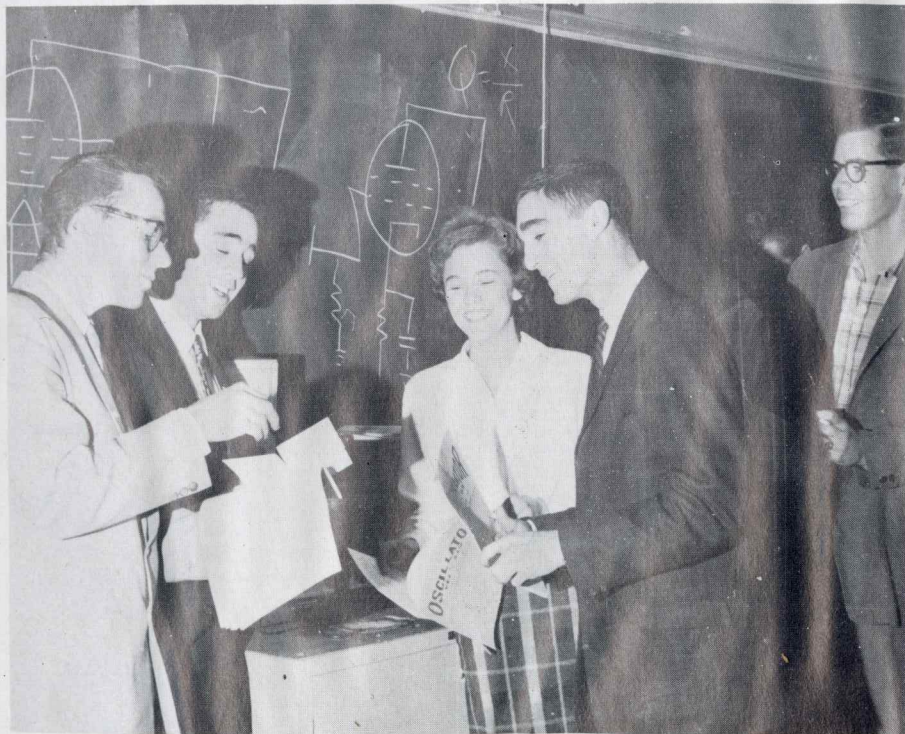

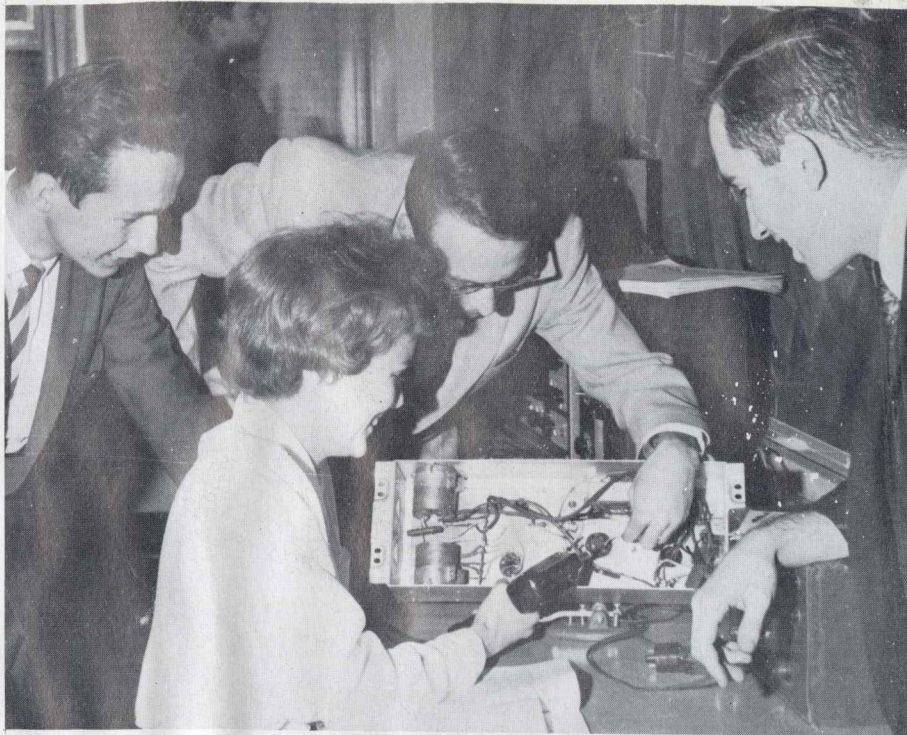

The Afro-Asian Studies Group this year enjoyed an especially active season featuring one seminar on Nigerian Economic Development and another on India and Pakistan. A programme on Population Explosion, a trip to the U.N. with several other clubs, and an assortment of lectures and discussions, highlighted the year. One such discussion was on discrimination towards Afro-Asians in Immigration.

Amateur Radio Club

President: Milan Konecny

As part of their program, the Amateur Radio Club (VE2BAW) held regular classes in radio theory and morse code. Supplementing these lectures, were movies on subjects relating to electronics. "The Oscillator", the club's much improved publication, was issued monthly to members and others interested in Amateur Radio. Highlights of the year included field trips and a transmitter hunt. Homeless still, the Club has hopes of obtaining a ham shack in the near future.

A.I.E.S.E.C.

Chairman: Lawrence Laing

AIESEC, the international exchange programme for students of Economics, showed quite a resurgence at Sir George this year. The plan provides summer employment abroad for those students taking part provided they can provide a job in Canada for a European student. Chairman Laing, working with Bob Vaison and Marty Hochstein, managed to interest 29 Georgians in the plan this year. This enormous increase may have been partly responsible for the administration's decision to supply a $200 grant to the organization so that more students may take part. Chairman Laing also attended the International meeting in Berlin this year as the Canadian representative.

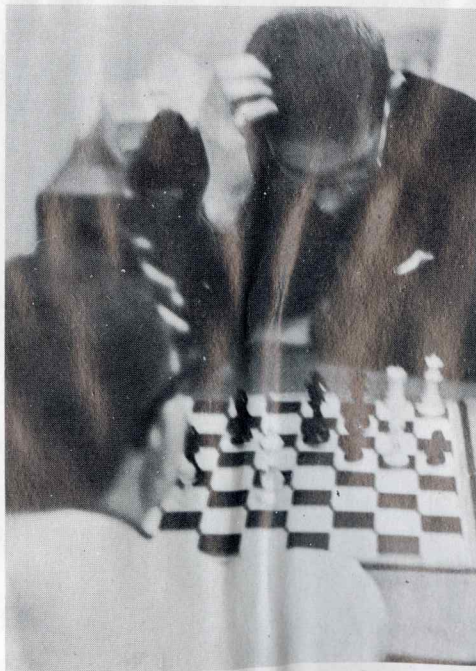

Bridge Club

President: Bob Haris

While there are numerous causes computed to be behind failure at Sir George, the chief, acknowledged, certified, and nonetheless pursued contributing factor is bridge. Fanatics and followers of this parasitic pastime gathered once a week all this year, like addicts eager to satisfy their craving. Initiates were taught the "habit" by more experienced lost souls, and eventually, dissatisfied with mild "kicks", the club sunk into a tournament with several other Canadian universities, proving the old maxim, "a little bridge is a dangerous thing".

Chess Club

President: John Chamber

Those people you see stumbling about the building stooped over with a look of hypnotic concentration on their faces, are chess players. They are conspicuous in restaurants for wanting to checkmate the salt cellar with the pepper shaker. Here, at Sir George, they meet once a week to wear out their brains over the boards, and this year heard lectures by experts in the game, as well as holding two chess tournaments.

Chinese Georgian Assoc.

President: Joseph Chan

The Chinese Georgian Association once more enjoyed an active year of program. Efforts to assist the foreign students to assimilate in the Canadian culture occupy a large degree of the organization's program. These include dances, dinners and basketball games with various groups. In addition, games of their own ethnic origin play an important role in group activity.

Combined Universities Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament

President: Dimitrios Roussopoulos

While the shelter boom was threatening to eclipse even the twist craze this year, many Georgians joined students in nineteen other Canadian Universities, and struck out to fight the bomb scare in another way. In order to bring to the public eye, currently focused underground, their ideas of world disarmament, and on Canada's withdrawal from N. O.R.A.D., and possibly N.A.T.O., they staged protest marches, rallies and study sessions. The C.U.C.N.D. members are distinguishable by their small black and white buttons which, despite popular demand, were not issued in pink for fashion-conscious co-eds.

Chemical Institute of Canada

President: Mendy Solak

The swelling ranks of the chemists this year boasted a balanced program of lectures by such professionals as a member of the National Research Council; various films; panel discussions; and a tour of the C.I.L. Research Plant laboratories in Beloeil. The magazine, "Chemistry in Canada", found its way into their hands each month, and at bi-monthly meetings the club plotted ways of blowing up Montreal before the hydrogen bomb gets a chance. On with Science!

Debating Union

Speaker: Lionel Chetwynd

This year the Georgian debators as usual, managed to shoot off their mouths on every subject imaginable (and some well beyond the bounds of imagination). Swept by a wave of enthusiasm, they initiated a novice training plan, co-sponsored a hilarious mock trial with the Pre-Law Society, and persuaded Prof. Nish to take arms against separatist M. Barbeau (guess what topic) and, by opposing, end him. The Union then found time to debate and participated in tournaments held by U. of Vermont, U. of Rochester, the McGill Winter Carnival, and the Inter-Varsity Debating League.

President: Jim Donoghue

Geography Society

The Geography society, a year-round proposition, plunged into action last summer with excursions to the Eastern Townships and around Montreal. Throughout the academic year the club was busy holding weekly meetings at which slides and films from around the world were shown. Modern Italy and Languages and Races in India were the topics presented by two of several speakers. With the U. of Ottawa, the group organized a joint field trip to the Pembroke, Ontario region. Summer plans include a trip to Dartmouth in the U.S. and attendance at the National Geographical conference in Hamilton, Ontario.

Film Society

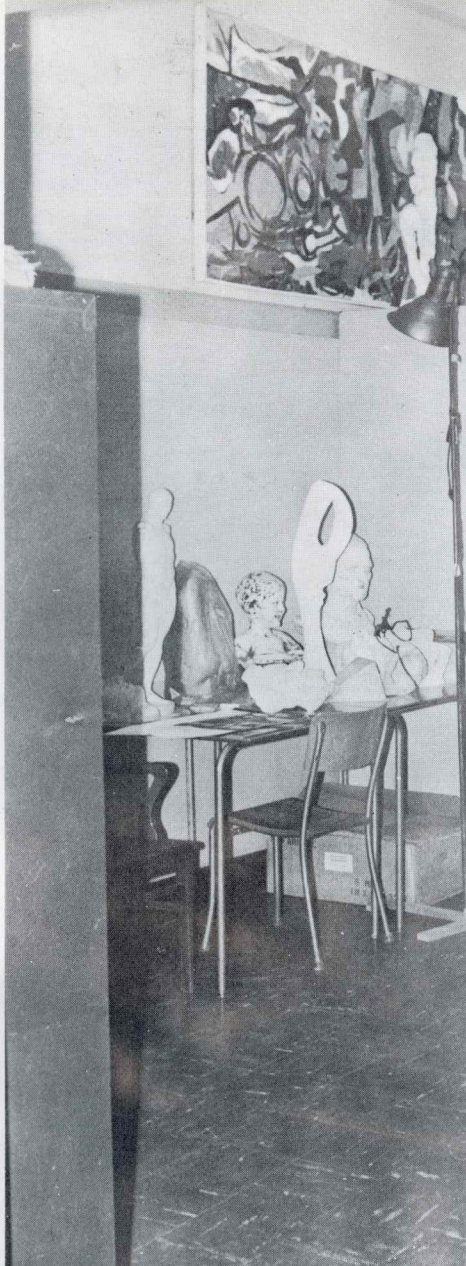

President—D. Angelo Gismondi

Supplementing their Sunday night movies with Saturday discussion sessions on the art, the Film Soc. this year presented an eventful programme. Over twenty features ranged from Bergman's "Seventh Seal," to "The Horse's Mouth," and included such topical films as "Breathless" (France 1959)—where were the censors? The club exec. was kept busy compiling weekly bulletins containing previews and ratings (solicited from the audience) of the previous week's features. Projectionist Rinus Huyer, with his excellent work, gave the showings an almost professional air.

Gismondi & Huyer

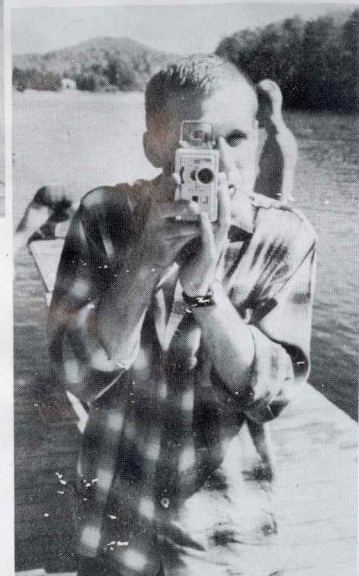

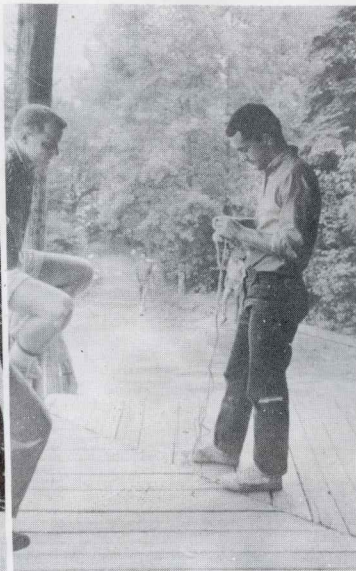

Fine Arts Club

President: Louella Gasoi

To promote an interest in the fine arts, the club this year sponsored a very interesting programme. A series of movies, notably those of Norman McLaren and lectures by Dr. Arthur Lismar, were among the regular activities. Extras were a student art exhibit in the spring and an extensive exhibit of contemporary lithographs loaned by the National Gallery.

Georgian Players

President: Rod Jack

From an atmosphere of smoke, sweat, cigarette holders and theatah, the Georgian Players, this year, reared their precocious heads in the major production, "Him," by e. e. Cummings. From all accounts, "Him" was an unworthy vehicle for "them" (the cast), who nevertheless did an excellent job under the professional directorship of Victor Knight. This, however, was not all; later in the year three experimental one-act plays, student-directed, burst forth upon the eager public, the best one being entered in the Intervarsity Drama League Festival.

Jazz Society

President: Carl Palmas.

Two fine swinging sessions kicked the Society off to a steaming start. A short interruption in program resulted in a noticeable decline in attendance and it was only after Christmas that things started to swing again in a quiet, cool way.

The atmosphere of all the performances was kept informal allowing those musicians sitting in an opportunity for maximum expression seldom experienced in club dates.

The year's program offered an opportunity for the fans too by providing some of Montreal's top jazz talent. Where else could you hear for the small price of a short stroll along the lower basement the tinkle-tinkle of Buddy Jones or the shennanigans of Billy Horne on piano? Or the exciting rhythms and counter-rhythms of Norm Griffiths or Chico? Or for that matter dig such ingenuity on bass produced by the fleeting fingers of the club's own leader, No place, man . . . 'cept the common Common Room on a Saturday afternoon.

Philosophy Society

President: Joel Hartt

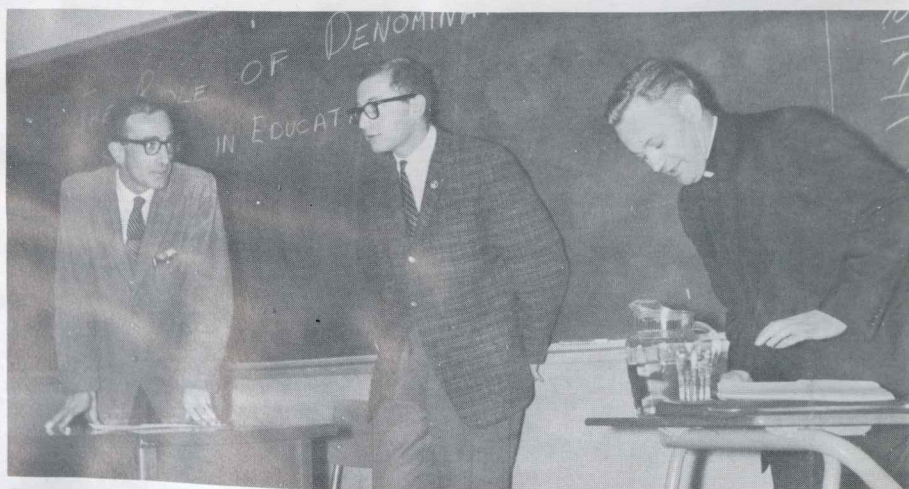

Reflective thinkers, artsmen obviously, find an outlet for their various philosophies in this society's weekly meetings. In addition to these discussions, the society invited a number of guests to debate or lecture. Father McKinnon of Loyola and our own Cameron Nish, started the year's activities with a discussion on the pros and cons of secular schools. Irving Layton and Prof. McCulloch drew an attentive audience for their debate on "The ethical implications of free love".

Spending the bulk of the first term on drafting resolutions for the Model Parliament, the P.C.'s had their best year to date. The showing in Model Parliament elections was dramatic with the day club doubling their percentage of votes over 1960. Cabinet ministers Fleming and Sevigny were guest speakers along with eminent back-benchers. Other activities included attendance at the PCSF convention in Ottawa, and the co-sponsoring of a seminar on immigration.

New Democratic Party

President—Bob Clarke

President:

The New Democratic Party this year drew on the old Social Democrats and various independent socialists for their members. Although the club got off to a slow start, Bob Clarke, managed to pull his charges together before the Model Parliament elections. National President, Professor Frank Oliver, spoke to the club in October. Other speakers included the party's first M.P., Walter Pitman, as well as Major Harry Pope. The party took thirteen seats in the Model Parliament.

This year's Liberal Club, despite a number of executive difficulties (three different presidents), presented a very attractive programme. Club members attended conventions, and made themselves heard, throughout the country. Guest speakers included Louis St. Laurent, Lionel Chevrier, former Transport Minister, and Senator Hugeson. The evening division, led by Clive Mallory, garnered 50% of the vote to push the club into the Government role in February's Model Parliament. The club also multilithed a magazine for its members.

Pre-Law Society

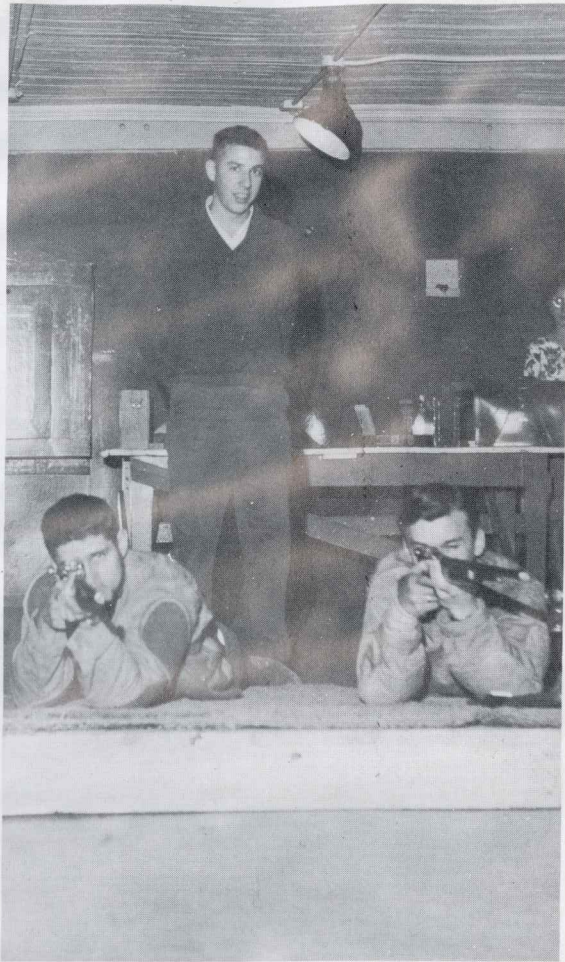

President: Dave Pniewsky

Once a week or twice a month, tomorrow's Clarence Darrows and Bentley Greggs gathered to hear lectures, see movies, and discuss the possible defense of their fellow Georgians. This year they toured Montreal's courts lapping up atmosphere. And also co-sponsored the Mock Trial with the Debating Soc. Frank Hanley's enlightening lecture packed Birks Hall for this group as well.

Rifle Club

President: Bruce MacDonald

Despite daily warnings about fire hazards, the rifle club this year held matches everywhere. With gay abandon and an obvious eye to fellowship, they shot in shoulder-to-shoulder competition with C.O.T.C. and McGill, and just plain shot at C.M.R. on December 19th. Just in time for Christmas dinner, the club held its annual Turkey Shoot, and later engaged in matches by mail in the Canadian University Rifle League, against McGill, Bishops and the Universities of Alberta and Manitoba.

Georgian Christian Fellowship

President: Murray Sendell

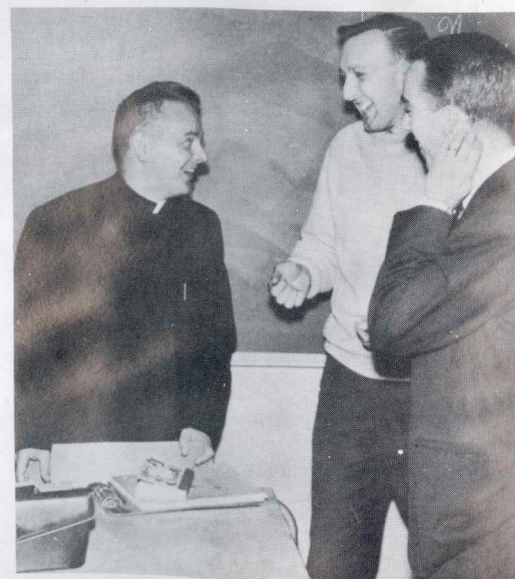

In order "to know Christ and to make Him known", the Georgian Christian Fellowship, this year with a greatly increased membership, introduced a programme designed their threefold purpose: to encourage trust in Christ, to mature and strengthen Christian character, and to demonstrate the necessity for missionaries. The Fellowship held weekly meetings, daily morning prayer, Bible studies, hymn sings, and ski trips to the IVCF ski lodge. They also helped launch a successful musicale.

Newman Club

President: Treffe Lacombe

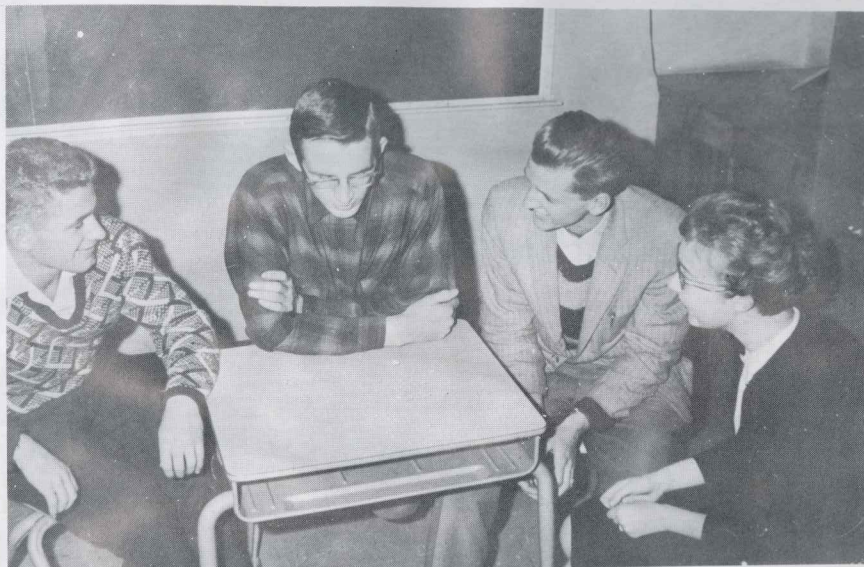

The Newman club, a Roman Catholic campus society, always manages a successful combination of social, religious, and educational programming. This year being no exception, the club held its annual glittering Newman Ball, a Millionaire's party, as well as various gatherings and parties throughout the season. On a more serious level, a variety of able and entertaining speakers, such as Mr. Murray Balantine, Father Hanna, Mr. Tony Walsh, Father Schultz and Father Poirier addressed the group on topics ranging from separatism to worship.

Student Christian Movement

The Student Christian Movement is an international organization which through a programme of activities planned by and for students seeks to present Jesus Christ as the source of abundant and challenging life for the individual, society and the world. Meetings are held in both the day and evening division and all are welcomed who come with an open and critical mind to join in study, discussion and worship, particularly those who cannot honestly call themselves Christians.

Student Zionist Organization

President: Allan Roness

A gathering of Zionists (pro-Israelites) met weekly all this year, and hatched a number of plans to familiarize students with Israel. Dance groups every Sunday night performed Israeli folk dances, while films on Israel and speakers espousing the same cause were presented. The Zionists also sponsored an evening of folk singing, as well as an Israeli exhibition which displayed various items typifying that country, and which attracted a crowd of over 1,500 visitors.

Tri-Service Contingents

Overcome by the proposition that the armed forces can make a man out of anybody, a fine turnout of hopeful Georgians enlisted this year, presenting the Army, Navy, and Air Force with a real challenge. Although required to attend parades and participate in a summer training programme, they were able to enjoy a scholastic season free from footsore, seasickness, and airsickness. Moreover, these men of the military engaged in a busy social round of events, culminating in the Tri-Service Ball. But they'll get theirs after graduation — the regulars anyway.

West Indian Society

President: George Richardson

To provide an association for the many West Indian students here and to bring West Indian Culture before Canadians is an aim the society ably carries out. The West Indian Seminar, which featured a speech by Dr. Springer, Registrar of the University College of the West Indies, and included films and displays, was an outstanding highlight. The society also held a dance and collection in aid of the British Honduras Hurricane Relief Fund. A variety show was also produced for the students and the Rotary Club of Montreal. The annual Christmas dinner-dance provided all members with the opportunity to get into the festive mood together.

Outing Club

When the mist slips down from mountain tops, and skies are clearer than a young girl's brow, Nature calls to all her followers to take up their packs and meet her challenge. But back in the city, the outing club ventures out, too, armed and ready for a perilous season of hosteling in the summer, and skiing and tobogganing in the winter. This year's programme included the sending of a delegation to Lake St. George as part of a conference of outing groups across Eastern Canada and the U.S.A., and a restful series of meetings, no doubt to discuss foot-healing remedies.

Psychology Club

Co-Presidents: Shirley Herscovitch

Marcia Shklar

With the vast number of specimens on hand for observation in this institution, the club was able this year to carry out a varied and interesting programme. At meetings held both in the university and at the homes of the executive, they presented such films as, Psychotherapeutic Interviewing, and listened to speakers like Dr. Lehman, clinical director of Verdun Protestant Hospital. A highlight of the year was a demonstration of mass hypnosis by two post-graduates.

Publications Commission

The King & sec. Golden

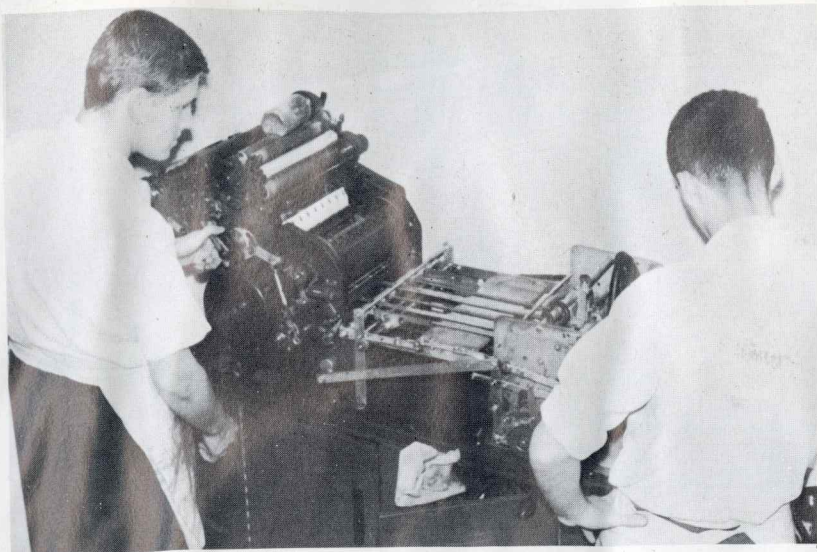

Commissioner: Doug King

The Publications Commission, with representatives from all major publications swelling its ranks, this year saw several steps forward taken in their cause of co-ordinating student effusions and lending them a helping hand (and pocketbook). With the aid of a new Multilith press, members of the commission were able to assist in the printing of more material than ever before. The expansion of clubs' publications led to the inclusion in the commission of a representative of these minor works of art.

Behind that mysterious (?) and slightly exotic glass partition creating an inner sanctum in the Garnet office, Garnet '62 staffers worked busily this year, as usual, to bring culture to the masses. Paralyzed by deadlines, harried by telegrams from printers, and generally unnerved by persistent visitors, they nonetheless kept a stiff upper lip and managed to pad the vacuum between the two covers of Ye Olde Yearbooke.

The Georgian wins the Jacques

Editor Gerry Rip.

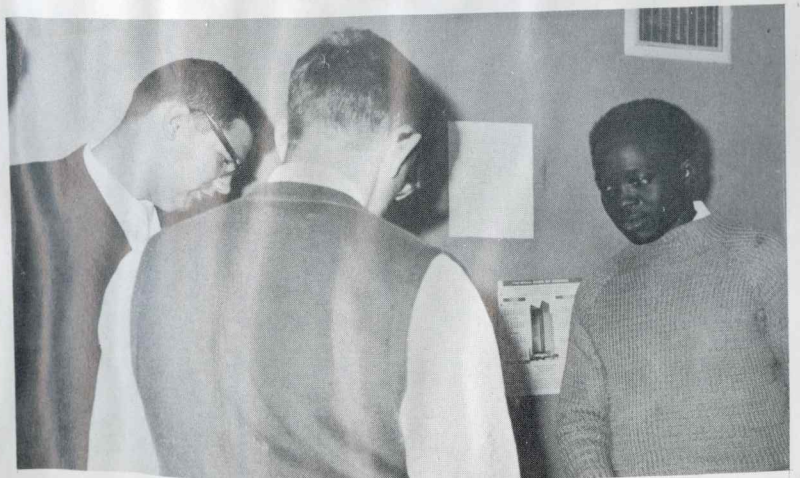

The pride and joy of the campus, the Georgian, weekly voice of Sir George Williams, this year was often heard to howl when pricked with erotic poetry, irate letters-to-the-editor, and news of the various clubs. From articles on Separatism to articles on Free Love, the Georgian ran a gamut of university interests, and particularly the interests of this university, which may be the best indication of its contest; which contest this year won it the coveted Jacques Bureau Trophy for the best Canadian weekly university newspaper.

Nothing since Little Lulu has so profoundly shaken Georgians as each year's successive This and Data, this year for the first time combined with the Student Directory. Its purpose is to educate freshmen and forgetful upperclassmen in the whys and wherefores of the various student organizations, publications, and governmental bodies which thrive upon the concrete campus, being of great service in familiarizing the new Georgian with his surroundings, and in facilitating communication between student bodies and students, by means of the comprehensive directory, which is also an excellent source of numbers to ring up at 2:00 A.M.

This year the Nightowl got off to, if you'll pardon the expression, a flying start. Beginning with the witty change in name and tightening up on the accuracy of reporting and editing, the first new eight-page paper was mailed to some 6,000 evening students.

Feature articles, frequent student polls and special interviews occupy the pages of the revamped news-letter. An increase in the general quality of make-up and layout is also evident this year.

At the time of writing, editor Wilson and crew were busily putting together a special 'elections' edition. This ambitious project is the first of its kind and is yet another testimony to the progressive thinking of a fine student publication.

Frosh by Gosh...

After hours of tests and more hours of speeches, Freshmen, the largest number yet seen at Sir George, stumbled suspiciously into the building on the Monday morning of this year's Freshman Week, wondering what to expect.

Whatever they did expect, one and all agreed that the results were far better than they had foreseen. Under the expert captainship of Elanor Bentley, assisted by a staunch crew, Freshman Week sailed smoothly through a sea of tours, luncheons and dances; initiations, for the first time, were forbidden but gaiety reigned nonetheless.

The foundation on which the week's activities were constructed was the introducing of new students to the University and to each other. To this end, shy young ladies and gentlemen (???) were herded together in small flocks, assigned to big brother or big sister shepherds (or shepherdesses), and ushered pleasantly about the hallowed halls. Later these same gentle herders saw to it that their respective charges attended as many events as possible: the relaxed Freshette Luncheon and Men's Smoker, at which freshmen got a chance to eat dainty sandwiches and hear speeches; a debate between freshmen and upperclassmen; a highly successful Tea Dance, followed by a popular movie; a Freshman Variety Revue, unanimously acclaimed for its well-planned presentation of many novel musical and dance acts, running simultaneously with a Splash Party (although in different places); and the climax of the week, the Freshman Ball, at which the lovely Freshman Queen and her four charming Faculty princesses were crowned. All of which led the Freshmen to believe that they were privileged scholars (ha, ha), destined to be catered to by their upperclassmen (ha, ha), and to lead a life of frivolity and pleasure here at Sir George. Little did they know that the Clubs' Rally was not really a part of this happy scene. Gay as it was, the Rally found most organizations ruthlessly bagging a large quarry of new members, leaving hundreds of initiates pledged to fail their first year. But in reflecting the true spirit of the University, this too fulfilled its purpose.

Night-Clubs

E.S.O.N., the evening students Orientation night, was its usual success. Some thirty clubs erected booths with the hope of increasing membership. The Political and Afro-Asian Clubs competed fiercely for members to the tune of the West Indians' Steel Drum bands. While this was taking place in Birk's Hall, a fashion show shared billing with entertainment in Budge. The following Saturday's dance, brought to a close the Evening students first major event of the year.

Leaders Learn

"A true leader grows as he helps others to grow." With these opening remarks, Prof. D. B. Clarke set the tone of the all-day student leaders conference held on October 14th. Chairman John Penner arranged a programme designed to aid club executives in both leadership and programming for the coming year. Speakers Dr. Dimock and Mr. Seman gave those present, material for discussion. Clubs Chairman Nick Bryson, as well as student societies heads outlined the role of these parent bodies as related to the clubs. Dean Rae was closing speaker at a banquet in Birks Hall.

of War Discussed in Depth

Some sixty delegates from over twenty-five universities attended this year's four-day conference. With the "Causes of War" theme it was hoped that an interchange of ideas would bring a new awareness of world tensions to the delegates and leave them with an awakened desire to work toward peace. There is reason to believe that some success was realized in both of these areas.

Dr. Brock Chisholm presented the seminar's keynote address at the opening banquet sponsored by the City of Montreal at the Helene de Champlain restaurant. Besides listening to speeches from the eminent authorities pictured above, delegates presented papers at daily study group sessions. The study groups, approximately ten delegates per group, were led by professors and such public spirited individuals as Gerry Hunnius, Secretary of the Canadian Committee for the Control of Radiation Hazards. Social evenings were also provided.

Planning for these four days started early last June, with the contacting of speakers, accommodation arrangements, and the host of details involved in a session of this nature. Sending out invitations alone required many hours of letter writing and telephoning as well as the compiling of information bulletins. Chairman Dan Coates and his exceptional committee are to be congratulated on an extremely successful seminar.

Alumni Assoc. inaugurates the K. E. Norris Memorial Lectures

K. E. Norris
Principal 1935-1956

This year, to honour duly K. E. Norris, distinguished principal of Sir George Williams University from 1935 to 1956, the Alumni Association inaugurated a series of memorial lectures in his name. No more suitable or dignified opening could have been found than the address given by former Liberal Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, who on December 9, 1961 spoke before a vast assemblage in Birks Hall. His topic, as typifies Mr. St. Laurent, was a timely one — the need for unity in Canada today, and for peaceful co-existence of English and French. At a time when Separatism raged like a ferocious young lion through Quebec, this great statesman and former lawyer sensibly stressed collaboration "based on mutual respect and perfect equality", rather than on further quarrels, yet he continued to explain that this equality did not entail the melting of individual ethnic characteristics into a sort of national soup. Certain cultural differences could well be retained, that were "worthy of mutual respect". But, continued Mr. St. Laurent, there must be unity if not sameness, a unity that seemed to be assured at Confederation, but that has been threatened by clashes ever since.

Reviewing the problems facing attempts to nurture a stronger Canadian national spirit, he urged greater bilingualism of the English and enforcement of regulations concerning compulsory bilingualism in administrative Civil Service positions. In Mr. St. Laurent's own words:

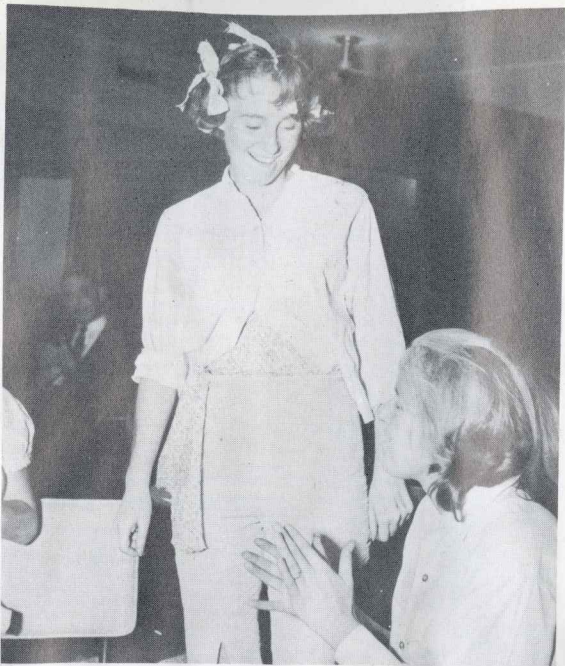

"We feel that in all essentials we can all be good and loyal members of the widespread Canadian political unit and live and work together to promote the development, strength and prosperous living and cultural standards of that political unit, without sacrificing our racial individuality and becoming like peas out of the same pod, provided we abandon the illusion of racial or colour superiorities and allow ourselves to follow the impulses of real and all-embracing human brotherhood and do not pay mere lip service to the invocation "Our Father which art in Heaven".

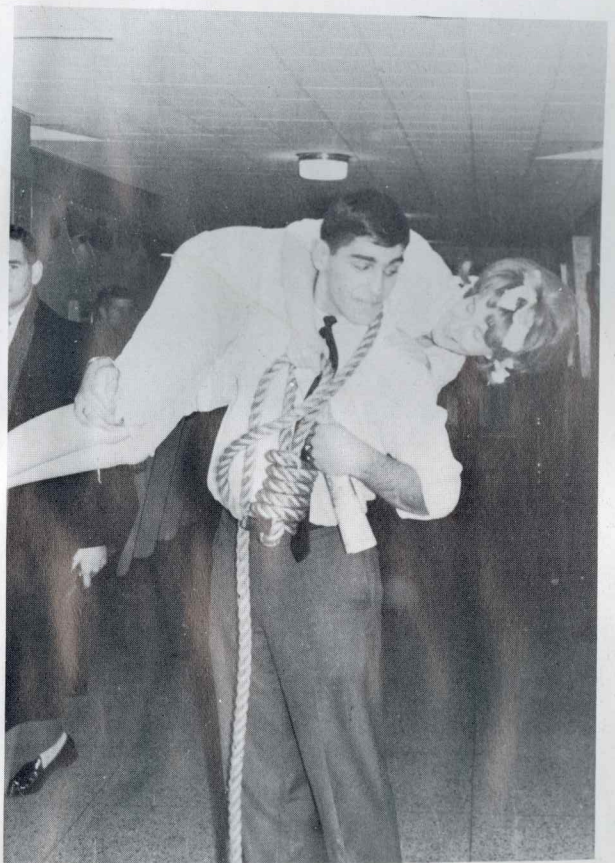

Shady Sadies Cut Up Campus

Beginning Thursday, November 16th, the Sadie Hawkins scene took over the basement (as well as other floors) of the university. Judging of Daisey Mae took the better part of an evening in the Women's Common Room, with a panel of experts firing questions at the six contestants. Friday afternoon, Daisey roped her man as the festivities moved to the gym for the annual Profs. vs. girls basketball (?) game. An excellent folk singing programme that evening was supposed to prelude a party at the "B." However, a mixup in bookings left the Dogpatch types homeless. Those who made it to the lounges didn't seem to mind.

On Camera One . . .

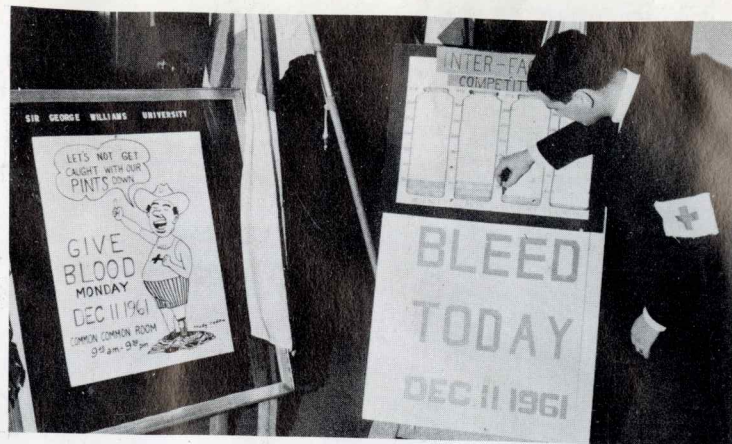

Commencing Sunday, November 10th, at 10:00 a.m., Sir George took to the airwaves with a weekly half-hour T.V. programme. The programme entitled "University," was a joint effort of the CBC and the university designed to better acquaint the public, especially prospective students, with the varied facets of university life. The Friday afternoon "shooting" sessions in Birks Hall provided the students taking part with the opportunity to become stars: the faculty seemed to enjoy it also. If this series proves successful, plans call for the eventual institution of T.V. courses offering full credits.

613 clots give blood

While many Georgians obligingly bled for a good cause (and for refreshments), this year the Clinics goal of 700 pints of scholarly blood was not quite realized, the total amount extracted being 613 pints. Sponsored by the Pre-Med. society, the bloodletting activities were supplemented by free refreshments and cigarettes, a twist party in Birks Hall for the donors, and a spectacular opening with M.L.A.'er Frank Hanley cutting the ribbon and leading the way to anemia.

... and the Dean poured

Each year those star-studded honour students of the Dean's list are invited to a tea, where they sip the ambrosia of scholastic gods, graciously entertained by the faculty and administration. The results, in fact, of this annual get-together are often disastrous; for the faculty is so overcome by the unaccustomed genius that is encountered, that they tend to bear down ruthlessly for some time on the other clods, even going so far as to expect assignments and term papers on time.

Georgie gathers group

Georgie, that stunning bird in the elegant tuxedo who chaperoned this year's Winter Carnival, can boast of quite a turn in that capacity. At 1962's gala winter dose of fun and games, a variety show that has been called "the best yet" took the stage, with Dean Morgan and Rick Monroe as M.C.'s; the highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Carnival Queen, and Georgie was heard to remark that he was highly impressed with the whole affair. The next day at Blue Bonnets raceway, a judging of highly aesthetic sculptures in a favourite medium, snow, ended in victory for a creation entitled "Cold War", the artistic child of the Rifle Club. They may be congratulated for having had the good taste to cast it in Georgie's image. That night found Georgians changed into evening attire for the Winter Carnival Ball at the beautiful Turf Club. Georgie, dressed for the evening anyway, was observed fraternizing with a gorgeous golden glover from his home town. Then came a riotous day up north, when even Georgie might be excused for throwing caution to the winds and having a ball. P.S. Contrary to malicious rumours spread by penguin-haters, Georgie was not responsible for all those beer bottles!

U.M.U.N.

S.G.W. Chairman—Jim Donoghue

Every year the world's largest Model United Nations convenes in Montreal under the auspices of McGill, Sir George, U. of M., and Loyola. This year over 400 delegates from the top universities of North America took part, not the least of which was the Georgian contingent which represented Venezuela, Argentina, Ghana, Ceylon, and the Ukraine. With no assassinations and little shoe-on-desk thumping, the National Film Board produced a documentary of this year's meet for international distribution.

Parliament Howling Success

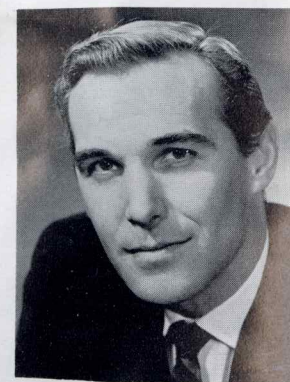

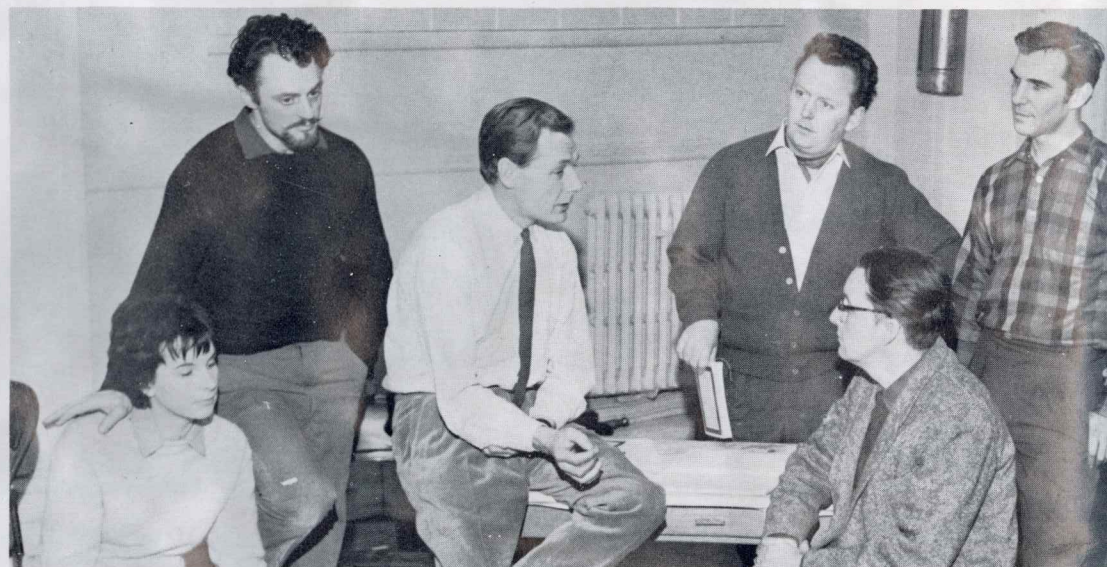

Following a very active election campaign, the Liberal club was elected to a minority government (23 Liberal, 14 P.C., 13 N.D.P.) for this years Parliament. Getting under way early on a Saturday morning, (so that evening students could take part) with Mr. Richard Hyde, speaker of the Quebec Legislature, reading the speech from the throne, the session soon degenerated into a freewheeling yelling match. Faced with defeat of the Throne speech and with opposition politicians howling across the floor, Liberal P.M. Lionel Chetwynd rose to announce the dissolution of Parliament, making this session the shortest to date. A short lived "Tennis Court Parliament" of the P.C.'s and N.D.P.'s was dissolved after passing a motion of censure against the Liberals, although some members attempted to take over the country by force.

Stratford Festival productions

presented at Sir George

This year the Stratford Festival Company experienced its first Georgian audience (an experience enough to curdle any actor's blood) making the university a stop on their cross Canada tour. A host of renowned thespians poured their talents into a two-night programme featuring on the first evening a discussion of Shakespearian comedy, and on the second excerpts from The Two Gentlemen of Verona, Much Ado About Nothing, Twelfth Night, The Taming of the Shrew, and the Merchant of Venice.

Dan Coates is honoured with a special award from the University Administration and the Student Societies.

Dr. Hall receives a parting gift from the students.

Tennis

With an excellent turnout for tennis this year, the Men's Team copped third place in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence meet at Ottawa's Rockcliffe Tennis Club. In the women's division, Coach Ken Thompson watched the girls smash home a first place tie with St. Joseph's Teachers College in local competition. Unfortunately there were few offers for matches from other universities.

Golf

Led by experienced golfers Gordie LeRiche and Ross Leeder, the fellows on the fairway had a driving season. Venturing south of the border, our boys won over teams from the University of Vermont on through to St. Lawrence U. in Canton, N. Y. They wound up their chain of victories with the O.S.L.I. A.A. championship for the second year in a row. For the third consecutive season, Gordie LeRiche took the individual Low Gross honours in the same league.

Georgians show in Track and Field

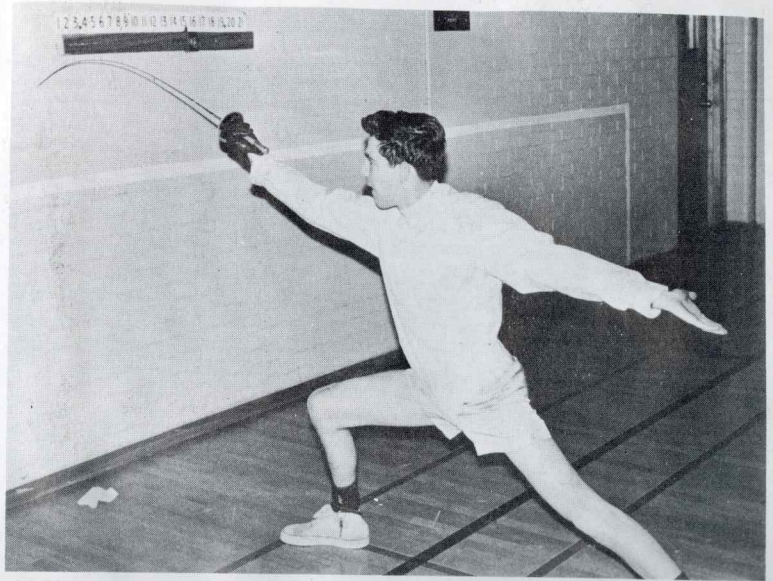

The S.G.W.U. track and field team participated in the O.S.L.I.A.A. along with C.M.R., R.M.C., MacDonald College and Ottawa University. This year the team saw an increase both in size and spirit over last year's squad. Nineteen members rounded out the list with fifteen participating in the only meet held at C.M.R. The results of this meet are as follows: C.M.R.—56, Mac.—39½, R.M.C.—39, Ottawa U.—28 and S.G.W.U.—25.

Practices were held daily at Kent Park and a practice meet was held at MacDonald College with Mac., U. of M. and McGill providing the competition. Sir George placed third.

All the members of this year's squad will be returning and are anticipating spring practices.

Fencing

Across the halls and through the corridors this year, echoed the cry, "en garde!" (touche was heard in the background). Armed to the teeth, and protected even further, Sir George's knights in shining armour practiced fearlessly the art of rescuing damsels in distress, who were however, practising right beside them. Contrary to popular opinion, fencing entails more than learning to point. It provides excellent training for the manipulation of blunt steak knives at dinner parties and has revolutionized the insertion of keys into unsuitable locks.

Bowling

As bowling in the outside world rose to new heights of popularity this year, the largest turnout of Georgian bowlers yet seen took to the alleys. Forming two leagues of eight teams each, the bowlers met once a week in friendly competition.

The team finished last in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Conference with a total of nine games being played in a single round-robin league. Other teams in the league were Loyola, McGill, MacDonald, C.M.R., Bishops and R.M.C.

Three exhibitions were played: one with Norwich, Vermont in which our boys suffered a 4-2 defeat and a home-and-home series with Windham, Vermont. Sir George won both these games by scores of 4-1 and 11-0.

An improved squad is expected next year with all the players returning with only one exception.

Coach Flynn Retires

This year the senior basketball squad, while its season was bright and successful, had to face the impending loss of its spectacular coach, Mag Flynn. For twelve years Mag has been stirring up gunpowder in the Georgians' dressing room to explode them into 155 wins as against a mere 24 losses. It's been some time since Mag himself led the league in scoring for the Maroon and Gold, years in which the team was a similar power in local leagues. Growing commitments as Dean of Students have forced Coach Flynn to step down but his influence and inspiration to the big boys will not retire so easily.

Basketball

It's becoming wonderfully monotonous, but this year, Coach Mag. Flynn led his fighting Georgians to a third straight championship in the Ottawa St. Laurence Conference. The team, moreover, defeated Americans teams for the first time in several years, and lost only closely to McGill for the city championship. In all, they dribbled, shot, and stomped their way through more games than any other North American College team which is really indicative of something or other. A reshaping job is in store for next year with stalwarts Willie Epstein, Sy Luter- man, Soly Apel, and Martie Lehrer lost through graduation.

J.V. Basketball

Into the valley of Death ran the five, their sneakers squeaking on the gym floor, and Coach Al Hirsch's commands ringing in their ears. Thus, with warrior like spirit, the Junior Basketball team played a very good season, winding up in third place after twice defeating the champions, St. Joseph's Teachers College. The team's record: 9-5.

Girls' Basketball

Basketball is an excellent source of training for future wives and mothers: it teaches a girl how to cope with baby's "dribbles", how to "guard" her home against that other woman, how to weave "baskets", when and when not to be "forward", and possibly how to "shoot" a husband. Recognizing this value, a large turnout of girls donned shorts and sneakers to try their skill and under the leadership of coach Maureen Ring, fared well in the Montreal Womens' Basketball League.

Squash

If you want to play tennis but think it's too common, there's squash (this doesn't mean you sit on tennis equipment). Squash is played with pygmy tennis racquets and cute little India Rubber Balls (if you're not athletic they're good for erasers). Georgians as usual were loathe to miss out on any game so they developed a roaring squash spirit which they carried into matches with McGill and the M.A.A.A., as well as intramurally.

Maroons

take two titles

Out on to the ice swept the Maroons this season, bursting with energy and wielding their sticks to run off with the OSLIAA championship for the first time by trampling the Ottawa University team 4-2. And as if that wasn't enough, those greedy icemen also defeated the McGill Indians 7-5, thereby obtaining the CIHL crown for their collective (and by now massively swollen) heads. With a coach like Dick Smith, think what they could have done if they'd worn skates.

Swimming

With many members from our champion polo squad, this years team had the makings of greatness. However, arriving late to the one meet they did enter, the swimmers were not able to come home with any awards. Nevertheless at C.M.R. they won two of the four events they were allowed to enter against such squads as R.M.C., Bishops, Loyola and C.M.R.

Water Polo

With a resounding splash, these wonderful water warriors were at it again, soaking and scoring their way through the league to the O.S.L.I.A.A. championship. Under the guidance of coach Jim McBride, the boys showed fine form carrying the ball well for good old Sir George

Intramural Sports

Doug Insley's sports department this year provided enough organized intramural activity to keep students sweating throughout the year. Leagues were formed for touch football, hockey, curling, basketball, baseball — in short for almost any team sport in existence. Swimming meets were held, squash matches, bowling — something for everyone. Although we are limited as to space, our time allotments in the "Y" facilities were used to the limit, Mr. Insley always came up with a gym or vacant lot somewhere around the city. With the university expanding, all fingers are crossed awaiting the hoped for development of a Phys.-Ed. building. Meanwhile, Intramural sports continue to grow.

ON EDUCATION

Years have passed since first we entered Sir George Williams University — years of concentrated (or not so concentrated) effort in search of a university education. An education which was to be the key, so we thought, to a happy, successful and meaningful life. What have we learned? What has been the most significant aspect of our experience to that end? No one should call himself educated, receive his degree, or feel satisfaction, unless he asks and attempts to answer these questions.

It is my conviction that our "education" up to this point has been ineffectual if it has not given us the foundation for a philosophy of life, an idea of the working of the world, some apprehension of what the Germans have called "Weltanschawng." This of necessity will serve as the frame within which and from which everything takes its meaning and value and lends significance to our actions. Truly, theory, without practice is futile and practice without theory is chaos.

Education, if it is to be truly worthwhile must assist and enable man to develop this philosophy of life out of his own conscious and intentional thought. It must present to the individual the essence of all experience and must arouse within him the desire to penetrate its depth and meaning. It must set up a hierarchy of values for life in which the final analysis becomes an expression of the individual's "ultimate and unconditional concern."

I am further convinced that this philosophy of life, which is both the seed and the fruit of education, must be both optimistic and ethical. Optimistic in that it prefers existence to non-existence, and thus affirms that life is something possessing value in itself. Ethical in that it is the only method to maintain existence in our world where a possibility of the annihilation of life approaches a reality. Ethical in that it must promote understanding, tolerance, respect and friendship — indeed love — among individuals, communities and the nations of the world.

Well kiddies, here are a couple of shots of the new men's and women's residences. Dig? As you can see they are almost ready for occupancy. Note in the snap of the men's residence that the dame's dorm is within viewing as well as yelling distance so all those chicks will be able to hear your squeals of delight as they are dashing off to shower or bedding down for the long winter's nap. You will certainly agree the architect hasn't missed a trick. May we call your attention to the cool elevator outside the men's dorm. This was primarily designed for those cats who come in during the wee smalls smashed out of their skulls and not wanting to create a scene with the Dean. We've also included some pics. of homey happenings in present pads. You'll no doubt see immediately the ingenuity with which some students subsist. Like take the picture of the cat a-sleep on his bed using an Economics text as a blanket! Now how many guys would have thought of that? Or take the one with the three guys playing "lean-on-the-wall," always a favourite dormitory game. Well we have tried to provide you with a pictorial panorama of present pads along with a peek into the future — hope you enjoy it.

BANK OF MONTREAL Business Review

THE REVIEW IN RETROSPECT

It is interesting to chart current business conditions in a calm manner, and dispassionately, to plot the economic picture as it relates to the average man. The decade of the 1950's, for all the hopes that were held out for it, has begun on a far less auspicious note than marked the beginning, and indeed most, of the 1940's. And the apparent failure of activity to increase at the pace to which business had become accustomed, has raised many questions and caused not a little concern.

The purpose of our Review this month is not to look back from the long-term point of view but to look at the long-term future, that has been often proved to be a misleading picture. It is better to picture reality, by means of the charts in the accompanying supplement, the Montreal Business Review of the 1950's, and to attempt to make sense of the national and international economic changes that underlie them.

At the outset, two statistical techniques that help to clarify long-term perspective may be mentioned. Firstly, the increase of price, which is shown in Chart IV, inevitably affects the movement of business indicators expressed in dollars. Price changes are accordingly eliminated by also expressing such indicators in terms of constant purchasing power. Secondly, the use of ratio scales, by which lines of equal degree represent percentage rates of increase, makes it possible to compare the rate of change of any indicator with that of any other indicator in the series.

During the 1950's, the annual output of the Canadian economy rose from $10 billion to $25 billion. As is apparent from Chart I, however, the expansion was neither uniform nor uninterrupted during the decade. Gross national product rose only slightly in the worst year, 1950-51, despite the revival in the recovery of 1951-52. The year 1953 was the year of depression, but has been definitely better. When allowance is made for price change, this level in the year of national production is even more pronounced. Real output in terms of constant dollars rose by 51%, or at a compound annual rate of 4.4% during the ten years, from 1949 to 1959. However, the average rate was 5.6%, and from 1950 to 1959 only 4.4%, a rate, however, when the steady population growth of 24.5% per annum during the decade is taken into account, real national output per capita was enlarged by close to 75% per annum in the same period through 1959 but actually declined by over 1% per annum in the subsequent three years.

The spot in growth during the early 1950's was not surprising in the way in which Canada has historically grown. Since the turn of the century, two periods may be singled out—1900 to 1920 and 1920 to 1930—in which Canada's real output expanded at average rates of 4.5% and 7.8%, a rate, respectively. Economic history does not necessarily repeat itself but each of these former expansions was followed by quite different conditions and it may well be that the years following 1959 were such a period of reaction. An analysis of the principal factors that comprise total demand reveals that within the overall growth there were diverse trends. Expenditures by consumers for goods and services constituted the major source—nearly two-thirds—of total domestic demand and are thus by their very size an important determinant of the level of economic activity. They rose consistently in both value and volume throughout the 1950's as shown in Chart II and were a major factor in Canada's expansion. The decade began with consumer buying continuing at a high level, with backlog of demand and accumulation of savings still a restraint from the war. To this was added a wave of anticipatory buying on the outbreak of Korean hostilities in 1950 and consumer purchases, spurred up by rising incomes and consumer credit, continued to mount rapidly in the next few years.

But, while continuing to be a major influence in maintaining business activity, the volume of consumption increased much less rapidly after 1954. Indeed, real consumption per capita declined in 1957 and 1958 and by 1959 was only fractionally higher than in 1956.

Part of the explanation for the low business level of consumer spending in recent years undoubtedly lies in the increase of many of the aforementioned factors in spending that had characterized the early part of the decade. Also related to the more rapid rise in the Traditions that live

Strong and honourable traditions provide the foundation of firm training in leadership expressed today in the motto of the three Canadian Services Colleges: Truth-Duty-Valour.

Allied to the prestige of the past is a university degree education given by these colleges to the officer-cadets of Canada's armed forces. Carefully selected high school graduates are trained for challenging professional careers as officers in the Navy, Army or Air force, for the responsibility of holding the Queen's Commission.

to serve the Future

Through the Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP) the Department of National Defence will sponsor a limited number of qualified high school graduates to obtain a university degree education, either at the Canadian Services Colleges or at designated Canadian universities. Full details of this sponsored education can be obtained without obligation from your nearest Armed Forces Recruiting Centre, or by mailing this coupon now.

From the Editor

This is it. Put away the layout pencils, throw away that dried up glue, and let's see what the printer can do with this stuff.

As the last page goes to press we can sit back with a slight feeling of achievement. There have been moments of joy and more moments of consternation working on Garnet '62 — people have helped us and bothered us — and we made it. Many people have been responsible for this publication. I would like to extend my thanks.

Jim "the banker" Thornton, Associate Editor, has worked on various departments on our staff from writing last minute copy to designing masterful layouts.

Martha Hanna earned a well deserved Gold Pin for her handling of the grads. section. The section was completed in record time this year with Martha shuffling the pictures and typing up those biographies.

Ron Goodfellow as Editorial Assistant did much of the research for our 25th Anniversary sequence as well as keeping the sales records straight. He was even pushed into doing layouts on occasion.

Marjorie Phillips, our copy girl, banged out some masterful writeups often on short notice. I'm still looking in vain for a comma splice.

Ed Fox on sports, lined up photos, for us and compiled those score lists. Off the job, he did layout as well.

In our layout department, Monica Mueller and Marilyn Berzon kept the pencils clicking to produce some good work. Then there were those who stuck their nose in to see what was going on and were handed some pictures and a layout sheet. Our thanks to all of them.

The Publications Commission contributed in many ways. Our thanks to Dave Stanway and his photographers. I'm sure they will not soon forget the day a certain critic came back from an assignment with a blank roll of film. The Commission advertising department secured all our ads., while treasurer Bob Lepore couldn't be cajoled into signing a blank cheque.

We can't forget Big Daddy McPhie who helped us keep the books straight and provided sound advice whenever asked.

There are many more who provided advice, helped out in a pinch or just came in to bother us. All contributed some way to this publication. Our thanks to "The Georgian" who provided much publicity for us. To anyone who helped out we extend our thanks with the hope that they find Garnet '62 a worthy publication.
